Strawberries are grown (grow) in Chile. They are picked (pick) when they are ripe and they are taken (take) to the packing station. Here they are checked (check) and any bad ones are thrown away (throw away). Then the strawberries are washed (wash) and they are packed (pack) into cartons. The cartons are transported (transport) to the airport and they are loaded (load) onto a plane. They are flown (fly) to an airport in Europe. From the airport they are sent (send) to a distribution centre, and from there they are taken (take) by lorries to supermarkets. The cartons are unpacked (unpack). Each carton is checked (check) and a label is put (put) on it to show the price, country of origin and sell-by date. Then the cartons are put (put) on the shelves and they are bought (buy) by costumers. If a carton is not sold (not sell) before the sell-by date, it is thrown away (throw away). A lot of food is wasted (waste) like this.
